

DICK

Gets a Nice Jolly

From the Enquirer's Correspondent.

He's Called the "Napoleon" of Politics Now.

Was the Whole Thing Until Hanna Came.

Some Praise For the Akron Man's Modesty.

There are a round million of voters in Ohio, says a Columbus dispatch to the Enquirer. A few more than half of these, probably, are Republicans under normal conditions—say 500,000, just to avoid complications in figures. On Monday last the half million people were represented by a slim-waisted fellow who was speeding westward on a Baltimore and Ohio train. He left Washington Sunday night, accompanied by a small bodyguard of Congressmen and smaller lights in politics. He wore a brand new sack suit of grayish spring goods, which would cost about $30 at a respectable tailor shop on "the avenue." On his head was a soft black hat of fine quality with a military crease in the crown and a cord where men of less military taste and renown have a band. His hair dark, getting to be somewhat grizzled now, was rather long and brushed back. His face was shaven smooth. It was one of those faces which are the most striking and picturesque without a curled mustache or Napoleonic imperial. The whole get-up of the man was a study in effect, though it was not radical enough to lay him liable to the open charge of posing. Had his abundant locks been "swoopy" and his shirt dirty he would have been a crank. As it was, he was a person to be noted among his fellows, with a degree of self-consciousness that never quite stopped over.

This citizen was Charles Dick, Congressman, politician, general, chairman of the Republican State Executive committee, secretary of the National committee, and many other things, to say nothing of what the future has in store for him—delegate at large, member of the National committee, etc. A knot of politicians and delegates, the advance guard of the State convention, were loafing about the hotels in Columbus, waiting for Dick to give the cue as to what to say.

AN OBJECT LESSON

In a Restaurant.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from 50 to 80 years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something. If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deady lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee, and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous, sickly looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantity any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydrochloric acid, distastes and auct.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly and thus giving a much needed rest and giving an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel, nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets. All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full sized packages and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

On his arrival at the capitol he was surrounded by newspaper men, to whom he gave speech in freedom. His uniform graciousness to the press is not the mere affectation of a favor-seeking politician. He has the manners of a gentleman, the patience of Job, and has a pretty high standing among the artists of journalism for veracity and reliability. Mr. Dick stood the cross examination with dignity and skill. He told all there was to be known about the delegates at large, the Presidential electors, the platform, etc., and no reporter who knew the value of time troubled himself to see anybody else. Mr. Dick was the supreme boss till the arrival of Hon. Marcus Alonzo Hanna.

At this writing I should say that the Republican State convention practically consists of four people, as follows, in the order of consequence: Marcus A. Hanna, Charles Dick, Geo. B. Cox and Charles H. Grosvenor. It is proper to say that General Grosvenor is not one of the bosses, but he has a skillful way of declaring himself in on whatever is going on that puts him on the ground floor. There is no scattering in the Republican party as it is now organized. There is concentration and power. Nothing is left to drift. The establishment is organized like an army, and the private soldiers have only to obey and the subordinate officers merely carry out orders from the general headquarters. If anything is wrong with the organization it is too fine. It leaves no play for enthusiasm, and no room for the party workers to even think that they are more than automatons. The whole program is strictly business. If everything is not exactly arranged as it is to be, the open plans can be quickly adapted to circumstances.

BOUND OVER

To Common Pleas Court
Thursday Morning.

Were Palmer and Leonard—Falls Boys in Trouble.

Joseph Palmer and Edward Leonard were arraigned in Mayor's court Thursday morning, on a charge of burglarizing the hardware store of Louis Bickel, 511 South Main st. Both pleaded "not guilty," waived a preliminary examination and were bound over to Common Pleas court in the sum of $1,000 each.

George Billinger and Pearl Mellinger, young men of Cuyahoga Falls, took in Akron Wednesday evening and also a few "schooners" of beer. Among other features of their visit was the exchange of a few hot words with Harry Cady. The boys then separated and at 12 o'clock Cady started to go to his home on North Hill. On the same car with Cady was Officer John Goodenberger. When Cady alighted from the car at North st., Billinger and Mellinger were there waiting for him.

As Cady stepped from the car Officer Goodenberger heard one of the boys remark: "There's the fellow we're looking for," and both forthwith assaulted Cady. Officer Goodenberger got off the car and promptly arrested the boys. In Mayor's court Thursday morning Billinger and Mellinger were each fined $2 and costs.

Patrick Brady, John Welch, Wm. Metzger, Edward Evans and Frank Graham, for intoxication, were each fined $2 and costs.

Walter Buckmaster was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery preferred by Abe Williams. He pleaded "not guilty," and case continued to Saturday morning.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cures Them—Two Letters from Women.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to tell you of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I was sick in bed about five weeks. The right side of my abdomen pained me and was so swollen and sore that I could not walk. The doctor told my husband I would have to undergo an operation. This I refused to do until I had given your medicine a trial. Before I had taken one bottle the swelling began to disappear. I continued to use your medicine until the swelling was entirely gone. When the doctor came he was very much surprised to see me so much better."—Mrs. MARY SMITH, Arlington, Iowa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was sick for two years with falling of the womb, and inflammation of the ovaries and bladder. I was bloated very badly. My left limb would swell so I could not step on my foot. I had such bearing down pains I could not straighten up or walk across the room and such shooting pains would go through me that I thought I could not stand. My mother got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me to try it. I took six bottles and now, thanks to your wonderful medicine, I am a well woman."—Mrs. ELLEN BRYAN, Otisville, Mich.

$750,000. The Baltimore & Ohio is also having extensive improvements made on its Chicago division and plans are being prepared for extensive improvements in the vicinity of Pittsburgh. The management is determined to reduce grades and straighten curves as much as possible, and during the next few years will expend about $25,000,000 on this and other work.

HIGHER PRICES

Agreed Upon by Stoneware Manufacturers.

The monthly meeting of the Stoneware Manufacturers' Association of Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, was held at the Chittenden hotel, Columbus, Tuesday evening with about 20 members in attendance. President R. H. Kent, of Akron, stated that at the meeting the price list was revised the general tendency being to stiffen the prices somewhat in order to meet the increased cost of the raw material. He also stated that the prospects were for a good business this fall.

The meetings are held here monthly for the purpose of considering trade conditions and to discuss other matters pertaining to their line of business.

Given at Amercian Hall
Wednesday Evening.

Mrs. Berrodin, Misses Weinsheimer and Gray, Hostesses.

A very pleasant event Wednesday evening was the private party given at American hall by Mrs. Albert Berrodin, Miss Rose Weinsheimer and Miss Claudia Gray, who entertained 50 of their friends in royal style. Music and dancing were among the principal features and social pastimes were many and varied. Music was furnished by Prof. Seidel's orchestra.

Light refreshments were served, under the especial direction of Mr. Frank Zeller, who, by the clever performance of his duties, ingratiated himself into the good will of all present. Mr. Zeller was not only an expert in his line, but he introduced a number of acrobatic and linguistic specialties that never failed to infuse good humor into the program of the evening.

Talked to Students.

Prof. J. E. McKean delivered an excellent address Wednesday evening before the students at Hammel's Business College. "The Practical in Education" was his subject. Prof. McKean believes that to be practical, schools should be conducted as nearly as possible like the home. He also favors the use of typewriters in the grammar schools, and thinks that the practical should predominate in all instruction.
